David A. Eichenbaum, MD receives Michael R. Redmond, MD, Outstanding Young Ophthalmologist Award

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Florida Society of Ophthalmology (FSO), the preeminent professional association for medical and osteopathic physicians who specialize in vision care, is pleased to announce that David A. Eichenbaum, MD received the Michael R. Redmond, MD Outstanding Young Ophthalmologist Award at its Annual Meeting, Masters in Ophthalmology 2015, June 26-28 in Palm Beach, Fla.

Established in honor of Michael R. Redmond, MD, this annual award is meant to recognize a Florida-based ophthalmologist younger than 40 years old, who has demonstrated organizational leadership, service, competence and devotion to the high ethical and professional standards of the FSO.

Dr. Eichenbaum currently serves as the Vice President of Education for the Florida Society of Ophthalmology, where he has been a member since 2008. He is also an active member of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, Association of Research in Vision and Ophthalmology, and the past president of the Tampa Bay Ophthalmological Society.

Dr. Eichenbaum received his medical degree at the University of South Florida College of Medicine, where he would later return to for a three year Residency. He completed his Fellowship in Vitreoretinal Surgery at Tufts/Ophthalmic Consultants of Boston. In 2007, he returned to the Tampa area to work at the Retina Vitreous Associates of Florida, where he still practices today. Dr. Eichenbaum is also a Clinical Assistant Professor in the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of South Florida College of Medicine.
